FARMERS VICTORIOUS

After a Struggle Covering Many Years 6 Cent Tax on Tobacco Removed by Senate.—Bill Now in Conference.

Washington, July 8.—The Bradley amendment to the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, removing the tax of six cents on leaf tobacco in the hands of the grower, was passed by a unanimous vote in the Senate this afternoon. The amendment was offered by Senator Bradley and, after being read, Senator Aldrich announced that the Finance Committee accepted it. There was no division and, accordingly no votes in the negative.

The removal of the restrictions on the free sale of tobacco in the hands as provided for in the amendment of Senator Bradley, which was adopted to-day, aroused much interest and is the result of many years' agitation and of much active recent campaigning. It is a live question in the tobacco growing States and has been the subject of many representations of Congress.

The prohibition of the present law, preventing freedom in the trade in tobacco in the primitive state, is said to have been responsible for the forays of "night riders" in Kentucky and Tennessee.

The present law permits the tobacco growers to dispose of his product, but does not allow his vendee to transfer it without paying a tax of 6 cents a pound.

The Bradley amendment authorizes anyone, the grower, any person to whom he makes transfer, or anyone else, to sell tobacco in the hand without paying a tax, but requires that when the sale exceeds ten pounds, a record shall be kept for the benefit of the internal revenue service.

The subcommittee of the Committee on Finance reported against the provision and, accepting the action of the subcommittee, the full committee made an adverse report to the Senate. Senator Bradley, who is the author of the amendment, has, however, been persistent in his efforts to have the tax removed, and at last succeeded in prevailing upon Senator Aldrich and other members of the Finance Committee to acquiesce in his proposition.

As the tariff bill passed the House it carried a very similar provision and there is very little doubt that when the bill shall become a law, it will contain a practical repeal of the present tax on "hand" tobacco.

The other provisions of the tobacco schedule were returned. They impose a tax of 8 cents a pound on chewing and smoking tobacco and of 35 cents on cigars weighing more than three pounds per thousand; with increases for high-grade cigars running up to $9 per thousand; or 75 cents on cigars weighing three pounds or less; $3.50 on cigarettes weighing more than three pounds per thousand, and $1.25 on cigarettes of not more than three pounds per thousand.

The adoption of the amendment marks the end of a fight of some eight years' standing in Congress. Three times under the leadership of Representatives Stanley and James, of Kentucky, the House has passed a measure embodying the general features of the amendment passed to-day. Each time Senator Aldrich has held the bill in the Finance Committee until the session of Congress expired. Before the Payne bill passed the House work on the part of members from the Kentucky delegation was engrafted upon the tariff measure. It was promptly stricken out in the Finance Committee by Senator Aldrich. The Kentucky members then took steps to bring it before the Finance Committee, with the result that Senator Aldrich finally agreed to accept it.

He was doubtless moved to do this by the fact that it looked very much as if the Kentucky delegation had secured enough votes to override him, and in action Senator Bradley had consistently sided with him in supporting the Finance Committee and deserved the assent of the committee on his part proposition. Several important changes were made in the amendment before Senator Bradley offered it to-day. The statements that the amendment limits the sales to ten pounds is based on a misapprehension. Any quantity may be sold, but when the sales exceed ten pounds a memorandum must be kept by the farmer.

It is believed that the amendment will be agreed to in conference and will become a law thereby.

Distributing Money.

The committee selected last County Court Day by the tobacco growers' meeting decided to equalize the winter and summer tobacco of the 1906 pooled crop by directing that distribution be made out of the money arising from recent sales by paying 5 per cent, and 10 per cent, of the appraised values on the winter and summer tobacco respectively. This basis was adopted by the committee as being as nearly equitable to all parties as they could determine.

The checks for the distribution in accordance with this plan were received from the Burley Tobacco Society last Friday, and are now being distributed to the holders of the contracts as they are presented to the clerk of the Board of Control, as heretofore. The contracts can also be mailed to either of the Springfield banks, who will promptly attend to the collection of the money due to them.

Bridge Completed.

The iron bridge at Fredericktown, which has been in the course of erection for several weeks, has now been completed and will to-morrow be accepted by the commissioners of Washington and Nelson counties, provided the bridge is satisfactory in every way. The new bridge is an ornate and stable structure composed of steel and iron. It is nearly four hundred feet long and consists of two spans. It is a truss bridge, and was erected by the Champe Bridge Co. The present bridge replaces the old wooden one which was torn down this Spring after having been used for many years for travel between this and Nelson county.

PROBABLY MURDERED

Infant Child Discovered in Well on B. B. Leachman's Place.

County Officials Will Investigate.

What appears to be a tragedy was unearthed by B. B. Leachman, of Pleasant Grove, this morning, when a dead infant was discovered in his well near his barn, the water from which is used for the stock. The baby had probably been in there for some time and was no doubt murdered by some one to hide a story of shame. When the matter was reported to The Sun the corper had not arrived. Until this is done nothing definite will be known.

The child had been wrapped in an old sack, but this had become partially loose but not enough for Mr. Leachman to ascertain the color of the body. The officials of the county will thoroughly investigate the matter and make every effort to apprehend the parties responsible for the child's death.

Convention Called.

The Republican Committee of Washington county met on the afternoon of July 10 at the office of Chairman W. F. Grigsby to decide upon the manner of selecting a county ticket to be voted for at the November election. After considerable deliberation it was decided to call a mass convention to be held in Springfield Saturday, September 4th, next. So far but few Republicans have shown any inclination to run for the various offices and it is not believed that a full ticket can be placed in the field.

Greene—Smith.

Mr. Hugh Lee Smith and Miss Nell Catherine Greene were married at 2 p. m. Saturday at St. Patrick's church in Louisville, Rev. Father Cronin performing the ceremony. The bride had been visiting friends in Louisville where Mr. Smith met her Saturday morning, having gone down from Springfield that morning.

Mr. Smith is the proprietor of The Sun. Mrs. Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Greene, and is a social favorite in Springfield.

ROLAND BLAKE

Byron Williams.

I do not envy Roland Blake Who lives upon yon titled hill, Whose land runs down beyond the town

And swallows up the mine and mill! Blake never feels the touch of want, The harrowed sense of pressing debt.

And yet, I know within his heart There dwells but longing and regret!

His castle home is grim and strong, Its turret peaks the azure sky, While mine is but a modest cot.

Quite lost to view of passerby— And yet, within my home there dwells A spirit that he cannot buy:

The breath of true, unselfish love, Devotion that shall never die!

Upon the hill no cherubs play To glad the measured pulse of day, No chubby legs dash down the path

To greet their daddy's homeward wail!

And that is thrown at you and you will have dirty hands. Many a man has begun a crusade against intemperance and proved himself as intemperate in his language as other men are in their positions.—Christian Observer.

Ah, Glorious Fourth, though endurance Be strained by the things that you do, Though you battle the laws of insurance And knock all the echoes askew, Yet we'll burn half the barns in creation

And scorch all our thumbs for the joys That spring from one mad salutation To Liberty, Goddess of Noise.—Collier's.

Sweet Mary Jane sat for fourteen days and wouldn't deign to rise, although the folks tried every way to make her realize that it was quite unduly-like to sit all day and night and never change her attitude or rouse her appetite. They coaxed and teased and threatened Jane and still she would not stand, and when they tried to raise her up she pinched them on the hand.

But Mary Jane knew what was best, she wiser was than men, she sat until she hatched her chicks, for Mary was a hen.

Lincoln Cane.

(Harrodsburg Herald.) Dr. Hopper, of Springfield, has presented Mr. A. B. Rue with a very handsome walking cane made from the walnut mantel piece taken out of the Lincoln cabin. The stick is nicely carved and is highly appreciated by Mr. Rue, who is a Federal veteran and a great admirer of Mr. Lincoln.

Quickly cures skin Eruptions, Old Sores, Soils, Ulcers, Fists, etc. Best Fire cure made. Relief is instant. 25c at Hayden and Robertson's.

At night, when stars are glinting out, And all the world has gone to bed, There lies asleep on Roland's breast No bud of life with tumbled head!

Blake cannot laugh the old, free laugh That takes him backward to the boy.

His heart is cold from shutting out The tenderness of love and joy! Despairing what he has at hand,

For weeks each year does Roland roam In vain pursuit of what I find Within the glory of my home!

Ah, Roland Blake, how poor he is! How steeped in penury and need! God pity him! His heart is cold,

And piling gold is all his creed! Ah, poverty of heart—how cursed! How desolate and sad is he!

But I, within my humble cot, How rich I be! How rich I be!

Gives Up Hope and Has His Hair Cut.

Tombstone, Ala., July 2.—Mayor Wentworth has had his hair cut. Wentworth has been distinguished for many years in the Southwest by his flowing white locks, which deeply covered his shoulders.

In 1896 he vowed that scissors should not again touch his hair until William J. Bryan became President and silver restored to a ratio of 16 to 1.

Undoubtedly the Mayor has concluded that the statue of limitation has run against Bryan and the free coinage of silver.

Mayor Wentworth is still a Democrat, though he has not followed the party in its extremes of platform construction.

The Sick.

Little Jennie Ragsdale, who has been dangerously ill for several weeks, is somewhat improved, but is not yet out of danger. The little girl has been suffering from pneumonia and during her sickness has undergone several operations.

Ciel Bobbit, who has been confined to his room for several weeks with typhoid fever, is convalescing and will soon be out.

Lucian Purdon, another sufferer from typhoid, is also better, and his friends hope to see him out soon.

Help for Those Who Have Stomach Trouble.

After doctoring for about twelve years for a bad stomach trouble, and spending nearly five hundred dollars for medicine and doctor's fees, I purchased my wife one box of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which did her so much good that she continued to use them and they have done her more good than all the medicine I bought before.—SAMUEL BOYER, Folsom, Iowa. This medicine is for sale by the Leo Hayden Drug Co. Samples free.

COUNTY INSTITUTE

For Teachers Will Convene Monday and Be in Session Five Days.—Splendid Program.

County Superintendent J. W. Bush is exerting every effort to make the Washington county Teachers' Institute which convenes next Monday a success in every way.

The Institute will convene Monday and continue in session five days. Prof. A. S. McKenzie, of Kentucky University, one of the State's leading educators, will be the instructor, while the program is a very strong one and will be carried out by the teachers of the county.

One day will be especially for the School Trustees of the county and every one is urged to be present. Aside from being given an intellectual treat, dinner will be served those trustees who see fit to attend.

It is the duty of every teacher in the county to attend the Institute, not only a duty to the people and the children of the county but a duty to themselves. By attending these meetings they come in contact with other minds, acquire new ideas and necessarily qualify themselves the better to instruct as they should. This should be and no doubt is a pleasure to the majority of our teachers who rank high in their chosen profession and it is to be hoped that every session will see all teachers present.

FARM AND STOCK

Items of Interest to Farmers and Live Stock and Poultry Raisers.

Stop feeding at noon while the hens are out on good range in summer.

Sloppy mashers are not half so good as those which are a bit crumbly. Don't get them too wet.

Gather up the chaff and grain around the machine at threshing time and store in barrels for the hens to work at during the winter.

A scrub cow will eat as much as a pure-bred one, but there will be a great difference in size of the milk pail you will have to buy.

Do not allow smoking near the dairy; smoking tobacco smoke more quickly than milk, and butter tainted with tobacco smoke is an abomination.

Late this month sow turnip seed. The ground used for early vegetables is just the place for a turnip patch.

Look up all the potato crates now where you need them. Put in a few where they are broken out. Store them under cover; storm will soon spoil them.

The average poultryman makes nothing by holding either eggs or stock for better prices. The eggs deteriorate, and keeping fowls after they are in good order only eats up the profit which should be made.

Have you been using rams out of your own stock for a good many years? Better sell them all off and get one from some good flock out of the neighborhood. Get a good one, and don't think it is money thrown away if you have to pay a good price.

If you intend remodeling your cow barn see to it that you get plenty of light in the way of windows. There is nothing that aids in keeping the barn sweet and wholesome as much as sunlight. Most barns ought to have twice as much window space in them as they possess.

Where cows are kept all the time in the same field, they trod down the grass so that there is so much they will not eat. By having a new field to turn them into each week, they will give the grass a chance to straighten up and be washed clean by dew and shower. Then the cow will eat it and do much better on it.

Before the colt comes the mare should have plenty of bran and oats and good clean hay. After the colt has arrived do not let them have too much exercise through the canal where the egg ordinarily receives its shell coating. In this instance the fecal matter or manure as soon as it reached the proper place was coated with a shell and then passed from the hen, showing that the shell-making operation is independent of the rest of the egg-producing process.

Meadow-larks are not only sweet singers of their few cheery notes, but are very valuable to the farmer as insect destroyers. The State entomologist of Illinois estimates that each lark is worth about $1 a year to the farmer.

In discussing the question as to whether or not it will pay to thin apples, a practical fruit grower says: "When there is a general crop of apples and the crop set is very fine, so that the chances for small fruit is very great and widespread over the country, it will pay to thin to such an extent as to insure good-sized fruit; otherwise it will not pay, except as a protection to the tree."

If a farmer finds that he cannot make red clover or alfalfa do well, it is comparatively an easy thing for him to experiment with an acre or so. Let him buy, say fifty bushels of lime just before he sows his grain. Make a big bin of boards on the ground, dump the lime in it and slack with water. Water slackened lime is much better than air-slacked. Then, after the soil is prepared for seeding, scatter 25 bushels of this slackened lime on one acre and sow it with three pecks of barley and 25 pounds of good, well tested alfalfa seed. Then scatter, say 300 pounds of soil from an old alfalfa field, or soil from the side of the road where sweet clover grows in abundance.

A Horrible Hold-Up.

"About ten years ago my brother was 'held up' in his work, health and happiness by what was believed to be hopeless Consumption," writes W. R. Lipscomb, of Washington, N. C. "He took all kinds of remedies and treatment from several doctors, but found no help till he used Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by six bottles. He is a wellman to-day. It is quite a relief and the surest cure for weak or sore lungs, Hemorrhages, Coughs and Colds, Bronchitis, La Grippe, Asthma and all Bronchial affections. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Hayden and Robertson."

A Midnight Prank.

Enterprise: While driving home from Springfield last Friday night Capt. N. R. Chaplin, of Penick, had a noteworthy experience. The moon was bright; and his good steed was moving briskly along when a negro, under a tree on the roadside, cried out: "Boss, let me ride." At that late hour such a request from a stranger the Captain deemed out of order and he promptly made an excuse for not being able to accommodate him, urging his horse to greater speed as he did. To his great surprise, however, the man made a dash for the fence and almost succeeded in getting them when a thrust at the negro with his cane and a regular war-hoop which started his faithful steed at a running speed thwarted the purpose of the villain. The negro followed a few paces, but was soon outdistanced. The attempted hold-up occurred about a mile from Springfield on the Perryville pike. The Captain had nothing on this occasion but his cane to defend himself with, and it is a good thing for that negro and the Captain too, as it turned out, that the weapon was a cane instead of a gun.

Epilepsy, Fits

Convulsions, or Spasms and St. Vitus' Dance are Nervous Diseases. Most cases can be cured by strengthening and building up the nervous system. To do this a nerve medicine is needed. Dr. Miles' Nerve will be found efficacious and satisfactory. It has cured many cases of these diseases and we believe it will cure you. We can give you names of many who have been cured through its use. Write for advice.

"My son John had epilepsy for years, and after having him treated by specialists for over 2 years he still continued to have attacks. He was almost given up in despair, but knowing the virtue of Dr. Miles' Nerve Pills for sick headache, I concluded to try the Nerve Pills. I gave him a teaspoonful three times a day. On July 1st he was free of his fits, and I could see that he was improving, and that he had a new lease of life. On August 2nd, 1908, and has taken no medicine since. I am writing you the case just as it is, hoping it will induce others to try it." W. R. Allison, Mooreville, N. C. You should know that Dr. Miles' Nerve Pills are sold by all druggists, and we authorize him to return the bottle (only) if it fails to benefit you. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

I want to trail back to the field and the wood
Where sycophants are kissing the trees,
Where rivers sing softly their rhythms of peace
And melody rides on the breeze.
I want to go back to the old bayou bridge
And angle for fish with a pole
To feel once again all the thrills I have known
Hanging low
And hooking and landing a fin
I want to return where the gooseberries grow,
Where choke-cherries pucker your throat,
I want to go pond-lily hunting once more

Where squirrels and owls have their nests;
I want to do up on my back 'neath the elms
And worship the blue through their green.

I want to go barefoot along the old trail
That leads to the clover-docked hills
By ways that are winding, where bushes
And whisper their loves to the riffs!
I want to go back and just splash in the mud
And let the cool cedar run fast—
Run over an under, and scold as it have,
The hands it has known in the past!

I want to wade out where the sand-bar is heaped
And let that sparkle with light—
Just wade and get sopping clear up to my waist
And holler—and yell—in my night!
I want to run down to "The Quarry,"
"The Hill,"
"The Hill," "The High bank" and
"The Strand"—
Let me stand all enthroned where my boyhood was spent.
Take me back to my own Fairyland!

Take me back where the roses are sweet
With perfume
Where the bees sing a song that is glad—
Take me back, let me feel in my heart
Once again,
Just the God-given joy of a lad!

Edelheimer Stein Clothes

Young men's suits with plenty of grace and full of ginger—built in a way that grey-beards won't fancy and built in that fancy way because they're not meant for old folk. Wide-shouldered coats. Built-out chests and shapely waists. Full-pegged trousers with the new wide spring cuff at bottom. The shape that you find in 'em the first day will last to the last. It's permanent—tailored into the cloth—a matter of needle work—not pressing. They wear so much longer that they're by all odds the cheapest clothes when you divide the number of months through which they give satisfaction into the price you give for them.

President Helps Orphans.

Hundreds of orphans have been helped by the President of the Industrial and Orphan's Home at Macon, Ga., who writes: "We have used Electric Bitters in this institution for nine years. It has proved a most excellent medicine for Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. We regard it as one of the best family medicines on earth." It invigorates vital organs, purifies the blood, aids digestion, creates appetite. To strengthen and build up thin, pale, weak children or run-down people it has no equal. Best for female complaints. Only 50c at Hayden and Robertson's.

The Little Deacon

BY MARGARET MAYO

COPYRIGHT, 1928, BY DODD, MEAD AND COMPANY

Most of the "first half pros" were loaded, and some of the men were asleep under the wagons. The lot was clear. Suddenly he felt some one approaching from the back of the inclosure. He turned and found himself face to face with the stern, solitary figure of the pastor, wrapped in his long black cloak. The moonlight slipped through a rift in the clouds and fell into a circle around them.

"What made you come here?" was all Jim said.

"I heard that Miss Polly didn't ride today. I was afraid she might be ill."

"What's that to you?"

"She isn't ill?" Douglas demanded anxiously, oblivious to the gruffness in the big fellow's voice.

"She's all right," Jim answered shortly as he shifted uneasily from one foot to the other and avoided the pastor's burning gaze.

"And she's happy, she's content?"

"Sure."

"I'm glad," said Douglas. Still, he tried to think of some way to prolong the talk. "I've never heard from her, you know."

"Use folks don't get much time to write," Jim turned away and began tinkering with one of the wagons.

Douglas had walked up and down in front of the tents again and again, fighting against a desire to do the very thing that he was doing, but to no purpose, and now that he was here it seemed impossible that he should go away so unsatisfied. He crossed to Jim and came determinedly to the point.

"Can't I see her, Jim?"

"It's again the rules," he did not turn. There was another pause; then Douglas started slowly out of the lot.

"Wait a minute," called Jim, as he and apologetic. He was very proud, was Bingo, and very considerate. He felt uneasy when he saw the other horses going to their work without him.

"Never mind, Bingo," she said, patting his head, arched neck; "we'll show 'em tomorrow." He rubbed his snout against her cheek.

"We'll make them sit up again," Barker says our act's no good—that I've let down. But it's not your fault, Bingo. I've not been fair to you. I'll give you a chance tomorrow. You wait. He'll never say it again, Bingo, never again."

Polly had nothing more to do tonight except to get into her street clothes. The wagons would soon be moving away. For a moment she glanced at the clock on the wall, then she turned to go inside the tent. A deep, familiar voice stopped her.

"Polly?"

She turned quickly. She could not answer. Douglas came toward her. He gazed at her in amazement. She drew her cape about her slightly clad figure. She seemed older to him, more unapproachable with her hair heaped high and sparkling with jewels.

She found strength at last to open her lips, but still no sound came from them. She and the pastor looked at each other strangely, like spirits met from far apart worlds. She, too, thought her companion changed. He was older; the circles beneath his eyes were deeper, the look in their depths more grave.

"We were such close neighbors to-day—I-I-I rather thought you'd call," he stammered. He was uncertain what he was saying. It did not matter—he was so with her.

"When you're in a circus there isn't much time or calling."

"That's why I've come to call on you," they might have been shepherds and a shepherdess on a May day wooing for the halting way in which their words came.

"You're all right?" he went on.

"You're happy?"

"Yes, very," she said. Her eyes were downcast.

He did not believe her. The effort in her voice, her drawn, white face, belied her words. How could he get the truth from her?

"Jim said you might not want to see me."

She started.

"Has Jim been talking to you?"

"Yes, but I didn't let him stop me, for you told me the day you left that you'd never change—toward me. Have you, Polly?" He studied her anxiously.

"Yes, no, of course not," she said evasively.

"And you'll be quite frank when I ask you something?"

"Yes, of course." She was growing more and more uneasy. She glanced about for a way of escape.

"Why did you leave me on your own?"

"I told you then," she tried to cross toward the dressing tent.

He seized her small wrists and forced her to look at him.

"And I am not happy without you, and I never, never can be." The floodgates were open. His eyes were aglow. He bent toward her eagerly.

"Oh, you mustn't," she begged.

"You've grown so close," he cried, "so close." She struggled to be free. He did not heed her. "You know, you must know, what I mean." He drew her toward him and forced her into his arms. "You're more precious to me than all else on this earth."

For the first time he saw the extreme pallor on her face. He felt her growing limp and lifeless in his arms. A doubt crossed his mind. "If I am wrong in thinking you feel as I do, if you honestly care for all this," he glanced about at the tents, "more than for any life that I can give you, I will send him away. She stood irresolute. The voice of Deacon Strong answered for her.

"So you're here, are you?"

"Yes, Deacon Strong, I'm here," answered the pastor as he turned to meet the accusing eyes of the deacon.

"As for you, miss," continued Strong, with an insolent nod toward Polly, "I might have known how you'd keep your part of the bargain."

Bowel Complaint in Children.

When six months old the little daughter of E. N. Dewey, a well known merchant of Agnewville, Va., had an attack of cholera infantum. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was given and effected a complete cure.

This remedy has proven very successful in all bowel complaint in children and when given according to the plain printed directions can be relied upon with perfect confidence. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take, which is of great importance when a medicine must be given to young children. For sale by the Leo Haydon Drug Co.

Death of Mrs. Healy.

Marion Falcon: Mrs. Julia Barry Healy, 69 years of age, relict of the late Dr. John Healy, of Raywick, died at her home in New Haven Tuesday at 12:30 a. m., following an illness of bronchial asthma. The funeral services were held Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock, being conducted by Rev. F. H. Wilson, Huguenot, with Requiem High Mass, and the interment was in the New Haven cemetery. Mrs. Healy was a beautiful Christian character, well known and well beloved wherever known. As a writer under the name of John George Barry, she contributed many articles of merit. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Edwin C. Hagan, and two brothers, Messrs. Joe and John J. Barry, of New Haven. Many friends grieve with them in their great sorrow.

Fearfully Burned.

Marion Falcon: While playing near the family home on Arbutus's Creek on Thursday afternoon of last week, Marshall, the pretty and attractive little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam B. Luckett, was badly burned. The family washing was being done near the creek and the child, who is only 8 years old, while playing close to a kettle of boiling water, stumbled and fell against it. Both arms were thrust into the boiling water. Hearing her daughter's cries, the mother quickly rescued her from her perilous position but until her arms were fearfully burned. Dr. G. C. Thornton dressed the burns and found that the child was not seriously injured. The little girl is a granddaughter of Esquire J. C. Beaven.

It is an old saying that if the stomach is sound the whole body is safe, because so much depends upon the proper working of the stomach. Many persons, and themselves with a disorder of the stomach which produces dyspepsia or a peculiar state of biliousness.

If you suffer from both stomach trouble and constipation you are on the way to a very serious disease. From just such conditions come appendicitis, rheumatism, skin diseases and similar disorders. Because the waste matter that should have been passed out of the system through the bowels has found its way into the blood, the result is a general poisoning of the system. What is needed at this point is not simply a violent cathartic or a laxative, which usually does more harm than good, but a gentle laxative which will cleanse the system without doing any harm to the system.

Who has the Stomach Trouble? People who have been using for years the famous "Caldwell's Stomach Remedy" are now recommending it to their friends. It is a good thing to know that you are not alone in your trouble.

You want to know from personal experience what "Caldwell's Stomach Remedy" will do for you. If you send your name to the writer, you will receive a copy of the booklet "The Stomach Remedy" which will tell you all you need to know about the proper working of the stomach. Many persons, and themselves with a disorder of the stomach which produces dyspepsia or a peculiar state of biliousness.

The Senate's debate on the tariff bill has ended and the bill as amended has passed that body by a vote of 45 to 34. The original Payne Bill with the additional 847 Senate amendments is now being considered by conferees appointed by the House and Senate who will attempt to reach an agreement that will be acceptable to the Republican members of the conference, it not to the Democrats and to the country at large. While no doubt the bill as it will eventually be presented to the two legislative bodies for a vote will be a high tariff bill yet by comparison as it now stands it is an improvement on the Dingley Law.

The consideration of and debate on the bill has tended to confuse the people as to the policies of the different parties. A number of the Republicans have voted for a low tariff, while many of the Democrats have been equally as ardent for protection of home products as is Aldrich, the high priest of protection. The Republicans who have been voting for a reduced tariff are but carrying out the policies enunciated in the last Republican platform, but the Democrats who have voted for a high tariff have forsaken their platform and the principles for which Democracy has so long stood, and for them no word of palliation can be uttered.

Hurrah for the Kentucky Farmer and his able legislative allies, Congressmen Stanley and James and Senator Bradley. After a fight of years the six cent tax on tobacco has been removed and the farmer may sell his tobacco without having to pay this duty. When we say that the tax has been removed we mean practically so, as the bill granting this relief has passed both the House and Senate and will unquestionably not be rejected by the conference committees of the two houses.

This is a victory for the farmers and for those legislators who have fought for them. We hope that the bill will prove of great benefit to the farming interests and that Stanley, James and Bradley will be amply rewarded for their unswerving devotion to the cause for which they have contended.

Newspaper Farmers' Friend.

In an audience composed mostly of the members of the Farmers' union recently, one of the speakers expressed the mutual friendship between the farm and newspaper in the following:

"As a rule the farmer has no firmer friend than the country press. The home paper is distinctly the farmer's own paper, supported directly and indirectly by farmers who compose the backbone of the subscription list of the printer, and largely for what the enterprising merchant advertises. Now, brother, let us not forget our friends. Let us see that our subscription is paid a year in advance; we can do it."

my battles shall have my support. Another thing, the merchants advertising are the ones who make it possible for us to get a good local paper. The man or local firm who is too penurious to advertise and help support the local press has no right to the farmer's patronage.

"I promise, hereafter, to go to the live advertiser and the man who does his share in supporting the local press, thus contributing to my support, rather than buy of a man who proposes to take all and give nothing back. If farmers as a class would support their friends, the other fellows would soon go out of business."--Florence (Ala.) Times.

A game of ball was advertised for last Friday between the Springfield and Lebanon teams. The Lebanon team, however, showed the white feather and did not appear. The only explanation that can be offered is that they knew that to play meant certain defeat and that they preferred not to play rather than to go down before our boys.

The physicians of the county are enjoying themselves at Pleasant Grove to-day where an open meeting of the Washington County Medical Association is being held. There will be a number of addresses and a big dinner such as only Pleasant Grove can serve.

Probably the largest shipment of lambs that has been made from this point for some time was that of yesterday when local dealers shipped nine carloads. A great number of lambs have been shipped this spring and summer which, considering the high prices, have produced quite a little revenue to the farmers and stock raisers of the county.

Mr. Kirk Chestnut lost a stallion valued at $300 last night of spasmodic colic. He took sick at Kelley's shop but was brought to town after having been treated by a veterinarian whose treatment seemed to be beneficial. It was not long however until the horse grew worse and died in a short time.

Harry Shultz our star twirler and all round ball player will go to Bardstown this week to join the team at that place for a trip through Southern Kentucky. Harry will pitch and play the out field for the Bardstown team.

STRAYED--From my place near Wilburg, Ky., one Black Bull, weight 600 to 700 pounds, Jersey, dehorned. Finder notify Richard Riley and receive reward.

Shaker Robertson had a nice buggy mare to the last night of spasmodic colic. Mr. Robertson had driven the mare in the afternoon and put her in the stable in apparently the best of health. About eleven o'clock she was stricken and died within a short time. He had owned the horse but a short time having bought her from Mr. Duke Goodie Saturday.

Marshal J. G. Grace struck a rather obnoxious prisoner in Tom Hooper Sunday afternoon. Hooper and a companion were, it is alleged, sitting in their buggy on West Main street partaking of liquid refreshments. When Mr. Grace approached the buggy Hooper jumped out, nearly running over him and took to the "tail uncut" at full speed. Mr. Grace jumped into a buggy and gave chase, but Hooper was too fleet of foot and, taking to the country, eluded the Marshal. Mr. Hooper has not been seen since.

Sure.
"After all," declared the wise guy "there is no nature faker more dangerous to the community than the gezer that sold my wife a sealisk jacket for $300, and which was found to be rabbit hide worth $20!"

Wayne--Bradshaw.

Mr. Otis Bradshaw and Miss Fannie Wayne, two young people of the Texas neighborhood, surprised their many friends by going to Jellico, Tenn., Tuesday night and marrying. Miss Wayne is a daughter of Mrs. R. E. Wayne and is a popular young lady. Mr. Bradshaw is a prosperous young farmer. Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw will return home to-night and will go to Mr. Len Bradshaw's for a few days. The Sun extends congratulations to the young couple and wishes them a long and happy married life.

Is Improving.

Joe Young, who was shot last week by Hardin Warner and whose death seemed imminent at the time of the last issue of The Sun, is reported to be better and that there are now strong hopes of his recovery. The only danger which the physicians in attendance can now see is that of blood poisoning, and they look to avert that.

The negro who is alleged to have done the shooting is still in jail, having been unable to give the bail of $1,000 required.

The Artistic Temperament

The woman in black tulle and pearls spoke up sharply. "I am done with the artistic temperament. It's the good and all," she said. "I wash my hands of it."

"Why, Mrs. Bond," protested the dramatic, "you have always been the good fairy of artists of every sort and description. What do you mean?"

"I will tell you. Do you know that tall, pallid, serene, apocryphal specimen of the race whom I have been introducing to every body for the last month—Arthur Lorington?"

"Yes; go on," chorused the listeners. "Well, I had met him by the merest chance. I was struck at once by his dreamy, remote air. I learned that he was a musician, a violinist who had studied under excellent masters, had come to Chicago to get some compositions published, had failed and was stranded here without a cent of money. Of course, he didn't blurt this all out as I am doing."

"Exactly," said the others. "Well, I went home and couldn't get that poor man out of my head. He had given me his address, so I sent for him to lunch with me and discuss matters of business. He came and played for me—divinely! I knew he was indeed an artist the moment he drew his bow across the strings of that violin. But you have heard him yourselves. Then I catechized him. The upshot of the matter was that I persuaded him, after numerous interviews, long arguments, an incalculable expenditure of diplomacy and a patience not native to my soul, to let me introduce him to some of the vaudeville managers in town."

"Base woman! Corrupter of genius!" were the protests. "I would not have imagined the trouble I had to get even a hearing for those unfortunate vaudeville managers with my artist of the temperament. He doubted if he would not be debasing his calling to so much as consider the project. And all the time there he was, starveling!"

"That, by the way, was why you got up that subscription, wasn't it, Mrs. Bond?" interrupted a young man at her right. "Yes," admitted she. "I simply couldn't see him perish with that genius of his. And I knew he must get hungry between my luncheon and tea. He didn't mind the subscription at all."

"How did he come out with the authors of the drama?" inquired her host. "Beautifully. They listened hopefully. Oh, such trouble as I had getting those appointments. But you know it takes time to arrange these little matters. In the midst of the negotiations, just when everything looked rosiest, my friend of the temperament disappeared. Simply dropped out of sight, leaving no word of explanation for me."

"What had happened?" "In ten days he returned—with a wife! If you will believe me, that insatiable youth had gone and married a little country girl, as inexperienced and helpless and altogether impossible as himself—on his prospects!"

"Then I had them both on my hands. I couldn't let them die in the street. And there was something awfully appealing about Arthur Lorington. His wife was a sweet little thing, too. But I had hard work to do to forgive him for ruining his career by marrying her at that time."

"So I set valiantly to work once more. Arthur had decided that he must study in Paris. He really seemed to have an idea about it. I agreed with him. He had hard work to do to forgive him for ruining his career by marrying her at that time."

"My poor friend," I thought. "What terrible accident has prevented his coming?"

"The next day I met him on the street. He came up to me coolly, smiling, appealing as ever, cheerful, yet with his little air of dreaminess."

"Dear Mrs. Bond," he said. "I was sorry to disappoint you yesterday, but it was unavoidable. My wife had a little attack of home-sickness, so naturally I was compelled to desert to the pleasure of meeting your friends."

"And that," said Mrs. Bond, "is why I have renounced the artistic temperament and all its works."

The Oriental Nymph

BY M. L. ROBBINS

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Miss Blanche Duval was one of a convivial party of four who sat about a table in a cafe chantant of a western metropolis.

Her beauty, which was of the heart-smashing variety, had graced the chorus at different periods of her meteoric career—long enough each time to charm some admirer into a reckless infatuation.

"I would give a thousand dollars any time to get that scarab back again," said the older of the two men. It was evident that his speech was flowing as volubly as the wine which had produced it.

"I need the thousand," spoke up the fair Miss Duval. "Where is the scarab, whatever that is?" laughed the girl, as she drained her glass.

"Yes, let us in, George," bantered Rosie Ward.

"A scarab," began Warren, "is a sort of beetle-looking bug, made out of stone. They are of different colors—mine was green."

"Just a match," broke in the hilarious Rosie.

"I got it in Egypt and paid a devilish big price for it, because it had been blessed by Pharaoh."

"They put it over you all right that time, George," said Tom Crandall, Rosie's escort upon this occasion.

"One night in New York," Warren continued, oblivious to interruptions, "I got into a gamble with some fellows at the club. The bets were running high and I finally bet up my scarab. I lost it to a fellow named Chandler Burton."

"Has he got it now?" asked Blanche, who had been much interested in the story and whose slumberous life now opened wide with concern as she bent toward Warren.

"Yes, he has, and the others all told me he had cheated in the game. I ought to have made him give it back," said Warren, glumly.

"I'll get it for you, all right—for the thousand," said Blanche, now keenly alert with the zest of an adventure which furnished the spice of life to one of her temperament. "Is it a bargain, George?" she asked, as she held his eyes with an expression which had never yet failed to elicit the desired response.

"If you wish it, girlie," he said, reaching over and covering her hand in a passionate pressure.

"What's the use making such a fuss over a scarab? You can buy dozens of them for less than a thousand dollars," protested Crandall, in an effort to prevent his friend from making a rash bargain.

"Why, man, this is a good luck stone, because it was blessed by Pharaoh and had his mark upon it. Besides, it is extraordinary in size and is surrounded by diamonds—sort of a brooch affair. It is really a woman's ornament."

Here Blanche Duval's eyes dilated with freshly aroused enthusiasm. Her fertile brain had already devised a scheme by which she felt confident she could obtain possession of the gem, using a method pleasant in its accomplishment, plus the reward of the thousand dollars. She was trying of the west, anyway, and was just a little bored by Warren, who had attended her assiduously and for a longer time than she usually allowed any one devotee.

Two days later Miss Duval sent the following telegram, just before boarding the Overland limited eastward.

Miss Maizie Boutelle, Green Room club, New York: Will arrive New York Saturday morning 10:30. Meet me train No. 6 New York Central.

BLANCHE DUVAL.

George Warren watched the limited depart with mingled feelings of relief and regret, while the train had hardly started before Miss Duval's unending affections were all ready for transfer to the interesting unknown—Chandler Burton.

Her friend, Maizie Boutelle, was sure to be in the midst of things. She could easily bring about the meeting through some men friends.

Miss Duval, looking as fresh as when she had started, almost five days before, alighted from the train in New York with an indefinable grace of carriage, into the arms of her old chorus girl companion, Miss Boutelle.

It was less than a week later that Blanche Duval was again one of a jovial party of four, who occupied a table in a Bohemian restaurant of the great eastern metropolis.

Chandler Burton, a man about town, whose interest it had of late become difficult to attract, had apparently succumbed to the fascinations of Miss Duval.

His whole attention was concentrated into a devouring gaze, as he analyzed the girl's unusual attractiveness. Shimmering shades of gold shone elusively through her wavy brown hair; her face was almost oriental in its rich coloring, while her eyes were of wondrous hue; her mouth was mobile and expressive, with its full red lips.

"Then it is settled that you will give a stag dinner so I can pop out of a pile and do my oriental dance in native costume!" cried Blanche, with well feigned merriment.

"Yes, that's settled, but I'm decidedly unsettled—since I've met you," he said, in a low, uneasy tone. "Things have only just begun—as far as I'm concerned," he added, with a meaning which could not be mistaken. While Miss Boutelle and her friend were engrossed in each other Burton pressed his point further by saying: "So you understand me, the game's only just begun—I hope for both of us."

He then offered to accompany her on the following day to a costumeur's where oriental stuffs were kept.

Blanche was very discreet in her confidences to Maizie, whom she had found somewhat changed, and not altogether congenial. But Maizie had rendered her the service she had wanted of her—an introduction to Chandler Burton. Her plan she had kept entirely to herself, since she was not at all sure it would have Maizie's approval.

Burton occupied one of the handsomest suites in the Ruchel apartment building where he lived. One afternoon, when Blanche Duval was taking tea with him there, he showed her his unique cabinet of curios, which he had gathered in his travels over the world.

Her heart beat triple time when he carefully opened an ivory case and she recognized the scarab, as it lay imbedded among the flashing stones.

"What luck was hers!"

"Oh," she gasped, "how dazlingly beautiful! Where did you get it?" in an innocent voice, as she viewed it with longing eyes.

"It's a trophy—the one I prize the most of all."

"I should think you would! It's so oriental in its splendor!"

"In that way it makes me think of you," he answered, hoarsely, intoxicated by her nearness, as they bent over it together.

"Let me wear it the night of your dinner!" she said, softly, quick to take advantage of the moment. "It will just complete my costume!"

"You shall, my harem beauty!" In another instant he had taken her fiercely in his arms, while she yielded her lips respectfully to his kisses.

Chandler Burton in that moment found that life had not palled upon him, as he had lately feared. With all of his former ardor he enjoyed gratifying the whims of the capricious Miss Duval.

By the time the evening of his dinner had arrived Burton was loathe to share his spoils with the men of his set, by exhibiting Miss Duval as an oriental nymph. But he was not in a position to deny her in this, and at the end of the famous spread the pie was brought in over the heads of many waiters.

All eyes eagerly drank of the charms of Blanche Duval as the pie opened and she slowly rose—a true harem beauty. On her full round bosom blazed the royal scarab, from its diamond frame. Her triumph was complete. The success of her plan was now assured.

The next morning at 11 Miss Duval sat waiting for a cab to take her to the station, when Herbert Sanborn—a stranger to her—was announced.

He greeted her by saying: "Miss Duval, you do not remember me, but I had the great pleasure of seeing you danced at Mr. Burton's dinner last evening."

"Yes!" quivered Blanche, raising her exquisitely arched brows in wonder as to what would follow.

"My errand is of unusual abruptness, but I am sailing for Europe tomorrow. I came to offer you $5,000 for the Egyptian ornament you wore last night. I am a collector of rare and unique jewels, and on that account it is probably worth more to me than to you."

Across Blanche Duval's alert mind flitted enticingly her possibilities with $5,000 in her pocket—and almost without hesitation she accepted Mr. Sanborn's offer.

Excusing herself, she went hastily to the bedroom where her traveling bag lay packed. From its top she took an envelope addressed to her in Maizie's handwriting—then delivered to the place where she had laid the ivory case.

Started into a frenzy at the discovery it was gone, she almost forgot to open Maizie's note. She tore it apart and read:

My dear Blanche: As I feel responsible in a way to Mr. Burton for your actions, and have discovered that you have packed your bag for your return to California with his jewels in it, I have taken the liberty, while you are yet asleep, to return it to him with your thanks.

Whatever our other failings may be, let us not add theft—which is a crime—to them.

I hope you will be as thankful as I am that I have saved you before it was too late. Your sincere friend,

MAIZIE BOUTELLE.

The next move of Blanche Duval is not recorded.

New Problem for Science.

A great deal of attention has recently been given to the cultivation of rubber, on account of the continually increasing demand for it. Prof. Francis E. Lloyd points out that "the inevitable struggle of man with nature" has already manifested itself in this new field. Already a considerable number of parasitic enemies have been discovered, "whose energies appear to be largely concentrated upon cultivated rubber trees." It is another problem for science to deal with.

Stamps Declared Out of Date.

Victoria, one of the states of the Australian commonwealth, still retains the late queen's head on some of its stamps. Letters thus stamped are now regarded on their arrival here as not stamped at all and charged double on delivery. One of the persons thus penalized asked the reason why St. Martin's Island and was told that the time of grace—six years after a change of sovereignty—had now expired.—London Chronicle.

Motor Road-Sweeping Machine.

A motor road-sweeping and watering machine is in use in Paris. It is stated that the machine will sweep 100,000 square meters of road surface daily, as against the 36,000 square meters possible with a horse vehicle.

(Woman's Home Companion.)
Joe Bing he cut ten cord o' wood
From rise to set o' sun;
He cut it, an' he plect it too,
Yes, sir, that's what he done.
To cut ten cord o' wood, I vow,
Is one tremendous chore—
Joe Bing cut his behind the stove
In Luscomb's grocery store.

Joe Bing, he cut eight load o' hay,
An' n'aked it too,
An' in 12 hours by the clock
He was entirely through.
He could, I guess, before he slept,
Cut 'em as many more—
He cut it where he did the wood—
In Luscomb's grocery store.

Joe Bing, he plowed four acres onct,
He plowed it good and neat;
An' 'fore the sun had gone down
The job was all complete.
The horses never turned a hair,
Wa'n't tired, nor less bit sore—
He plowed it all in one short day—
In Luscomb's grocery store.

Joe Bing, he made $5 onct,
By simply jacking 'em;
He done it all in just a day
With time for sev'ral stops.
He could as well keep it too,
A dozen days or more,
Where was it done? The same ol'

Harrodsburg Democrat Changes Hands.

Harrodsburg, Ky., July 10.—Lew B. Brown this afternoon sold the Harrodsburg Democrat to a corporation composed of the leading Republicans of Harrodsburg and Mercer county. State Auditor Frank P. Jantzen, whose home is here, is at the head of the company, which takes immediate charge of the paper. The name of the paper will be changed to the Harrodsburg Republican and will be made the official organ of the party in the Fifth district.

Charles T. White, who has been the editor of the Democrat for some time will continue as city editor, and it is understood that Insurance Commissioner Charles W. Bell, whose home is also here, will be the editor-in-chief. The new company will file articles of incorporation at once.

The Democrat is one of the oldest newspapers in the State, having been established under that name twenty six years ago. Before that time, however it had been conducted under other names. Mr. Brown, who is one of the several newspaper men in Kentucky, absent months ago bought a daily paper at St. Petersburg, Fla., and will hereafter enter his interests there.

Miss Clark Blanton, of Boston, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Ed Birch.

Mr. Tom Settles and Misses Myrtle Armstrong and Nannie Royalty dined at the home of Mr. Harve Barnett and family.

There will be preaching at Hillsboro church the third Sunday in this month. Everybody invited to attend.

PULLIAM.

As we have not sent a letter from our village for some time, I will try to write a few lines.

The long spell of rain is causing the farmers to be a little uncomfortable. Fully one-third of the tobacco patches look like meadows and owing to the scarcity of field they will not be cleaned out. Corn is looking good. Oats are fine.

Several from here attended the hop given by Mrs. Wornall at Tatham Springs last Friday night.

School began in the Sweet Home district July 5th with Miss Emma Hyatt as teacher.

Mr. F. H. Aah has bought an interest in the C. R. Cheatham farm near Williamsburg and has moved to same.

Will Goff was accidentally struck on the head with a hatchet by Mr. Abraham Phillips and painfully but not seriously hurt.

Quite a lot of damage has been done along Chapin River and Glens Creek to the crops during the recent heavy rains and high water.

Mr. Ellis Hallow, of Tatham Springs, visited near here Sunday.

Mrs. Noah Pinkston, of near Stringtown, Nelson county, is visiting her father, Mr. James Scott.

On last Saturday night Mr. Littey Hardin accidentally discharged his pistol and shot himself in the hand.

HARDESTY.

As we have been absent from your columns for some time we will jot down a few items.

Wet weather still continues and the farmers are awfully behind with their work.

Misses Mary Taylor, May Mayes and Edith Trent were pleasant guests of Misses Valeria and Jennie Goodlett Friday night.

Mr. F. M. Hardin, of East Texas, spent Saturday night and Sunday with his brother, Mr. Russell Hardin.

Mrs. Della Louis spent Friday with her mother, Mrs. Mollie Williams.

Several from here attended services at Mooreville Sunday night.

Mr. Charley Trent attended the hop at Tatham Springs Friday night.

Two Dollars an Egg.

Two dollars an egg is the price paid by James E. Morgan, a Webster county citizen. A few days since Mr. Morgan enclosed his check for thirty dollars to the Kellerstrass Farm near Kansas City Mo. The price, however is not so remarkable, when the hen that laid the eggs is valued at ten thousand dollars.

She is the famous hen "Peggy," and has taken more high prizes probably than any hen in the world. Five chickens were sold to Madame Paderewski of Switzerland, for seven thousand five hundred dollars.

Photograph Secures Pardon.

Illustrated petitions for pardon is the most novel and latest method of working upon the sympathy of Governor Wilson. As soon as Governor Wilson saw the photograph of John Henry Cole a convict at Edwyle, suffering with an incurable disease, he said that he should obey the dictates of humanity and pardon him. Cole is serving a five year sentence for house-breaking. He will die in a short time, but his family will take care of him. Governor Wilson also pardoned Edmund Walker, blind and decrepit, serving a life sentence for house-breaking on the third conviction.

William Harnsford, another life man serving under the habitual criminal act for breaking into a coal house and stealing coal, was pardoned. Will Dickinson sent up from Todd county for life for malicious shooting is pardoned, but the pardon becomes void if Dickinson is ever arrested, placed in jail or returned to the penitentiary.

Tudder Is Held Over.

(Lebanon Enterprise.) James Tudder charged with maliciously wounding Tudder. Spalding several weeks ago, was tried before Judge John A. Burton in the county court Tuesday.

After hearing the evidence the court held Tudder to answer to the next grand jury under a bond of $250. The bond was given, and Tudder was temporarily dismissed. The testimony adduced was very conflicting. The prosecution claimed that the assault was without provocation, while the defense alleged that the assault was made in self defense.

The ABC and XYZ of ADVERTISING

A SERIES OF TEN TALKS ON ADVERTISING No. 2
Written by Seymour Eaton of Philadelphia

Advertising and news are first cousins.

The railroad and the stage coach are grandchild and grandfather.

Four out of five advertisers still use stage coach methods. The agency that distributes news has the quickest, cheapest and most effective machinery for distributing advertising. That agency is the newspaper.

The man who passes your shop window is going somewhere. He is on some other errand. If you want to catch him when he is not in a hurry put your shop window in the newspaper; a few articles at a time. You can make a hundred and fifty thousand people look at this kind of window every day and with much better selling results than if that hundred thousand walked by your shop one by one.

I know a retail store in one of our large cities, a branch of an English house, which until the autumn of 1906 was managed by an Englishman; austere, conservative, dignified; a man who would have been shocked to see his shop advertised in an American newspaper. He had an exclusive trade and his net profits amounted to about $20,000 a year. This Englishman died. His assistant, an aggressive young American, took charge. He advertised; advertised continuously in the best local newspaper. Last year this exclusive shop made a net profit of over $80,000. Why? Simply because there are five hundred thousand well-to-do people in that city who never knew that this shop existed until they saw those advertisements in the newspaper; and the shop has an excellent street location, too.

This is a concrete case, the facts of which I personally know. The Englishman depended upon the quality of his goods and his beautifully crested stationery and his attractive shop window and his perpendicular-backed dress-parade clerks; all of which were above criticism. The young American put the whole show into the newspaper; admission free.

Show me ten shops which advertise regularly in a daily newspaper and I will show you nine that are making money. The failure of the tenth is probably due to bad management of some sort.

Some people value goods by the price they pay; others by the shop in which they buy; others by the effect the goods have upon their neighbors. It is only the common workaday sensible people who value goods by the goods. If you want all four classes as customers it is your business as an advertiser to make the cap fit.
